Daksh Rai 2 years.

If someone were to ask me what is my greatest asset, I would surely say it's the health of my near and dear ones. Hence when we (me and my wife) realized that our 2 year old son, Daksh was a victim of Asthmatic Bronchitis, we were devastated.

Frequent asthmatic attacks with wheezing needed him to ~~visit~~ be delivered medicines through Nebulizer in addition to several other medicines. Although Allopathic medicines did help in solving the problem in short term it had no solution for stopping the attacks. It was then that we came across Dr Mehra, who was referred to us by one of my wife's friend. Initially we came to Dr Mehra as one of the various means of giving some relief for our son. However when we look back now we realize and understand that this was one of the most intelligent decision and important decision of our life.

The situation took a complete U-turn as now we were not just looking for short term benefits but were infact made to believe by Dr Mehra that he will pull out the illness from its roots over a period of 1 year. The confident statement from the doctor himself was such a ~~ma~~ big morale booster that we started looking forward to our son for getting back to ~~a~~ normalcy.

What followed next was regular visits to the doctor as per his advice and strictly following his instructions, without questioning his logic. He was very clear throughout that his level of commitment to cure our son will be much higher than our commitment. This was very true as several times during the treatment when the problem did re occur we were shaken from our determination and ~~let~~ felt whether we will indeed reach our goal. However not even once during the entire treatment Dr Mehra gave the slightest impression that he could not be successful. Eventually after approx 1 year around April '08, he asked us to stop the medicines. By this time the attacks were virtually gone and even if he did have any attacks (more so since we did not ~~for~~ follow Dr's instructions) the intensity of the attacks were miniscule. Dr Mehra has a very organised and consistent approach to every issue. The amount of time that he devotes to each patient, his positive outlook, his ability to remain cool at the height of seriousness, his accessibility at all time either personally or over the phone having patient and their family maintain stocks of Medicine for emergency and many such more initiatives were unique and one can hardly find them with any other doctor. He also is fortunate to have good staff who are very co-operative. In essence we owe our child's well being to Dr Mehra. Thank you so much for all that you have done.
